Dear future employer,

It has been my goal to achieve certification as a WOCN since before I started my RN-BSN program. I dedicated my time and effort these past 20 months in obtaining my BSN. I'm proud to say that the hard work paid off and I graduated with my class August of 2020 with my BSN degree. Despite working full time, I was able to accomplish this feat and finish with a 3.998 G.P.A. I was then accepted into San Jose State's Wound/ Ostomy nursing program. I graduated from this prestigious program April of 2021. I became WOCN certified in June 2021.

A little about myself, I started out my career in health care as a Respiratory Therapist. I later returned to school to become an RN and graduated in 2006 with my ADN. I was hired into the adult ICU and completed a difficult ICU training program sponsored by the Sacramento Valley Consortium of Critical Care Nurses. I currently work at Kaiser Santa Clara in the SDU/TELE unit and have extensive experience with medically complicated patients including Covid positive patients. I also work in the wound care department as I pursued my official certification. I have experience with difficult stomas and wounds including wound vac therapy, pressure injuries, MASD, etc. I have attended Kaiser's consortium on Caritas practices the past two years and have integrated caring science into my professional practice. I have given back to my community by being a clinical nurse educator for De Anza college's RN program for six years. I have showed compassion by volunteering on weekends for John Muir's community health outreach program. In the past three years I have mentored new grads and orientated travelers and new employees to my unit.

Sincerely,

Daniel O'Leary BSN WOCN
